Foreword

India, with nearly half of its population being females, is completely focused on women empowerment as the primary source of progress and growth. Both Central and State Governments of India, strongly aspires for a society which is forward-looking, free of any kind of gender bias and open to new ideas.

The Indian Government recognises the importance of women's contribution to the growth of country's economy and has been constantly making efforts to empower women in all respect. To achieve this objective and welfare of girls and women, both the Central and the State Governments have introduced various monetary and non-monetary schemes and launched initiatives at the National, State and Local (panchayat) levels. However, many women in our country are unaware of these initiatives and schemes introduced for their benefit by various State Governments.

The Institute of Chartered Accountants of India (ICAI) through its Women Members Empowerment Committee (WMEC) has come out with this publication on "Beneficial State Policies for Women Welfare". Through this publication, efforts have been made to create awareness amongst women about various initiatives and schemes introduced by the State Governments for their benefit, like helping them in getting jobs, providing financial assistance and basic facilities of health and education. This publication would help and provide due guidance to not only to the women members of the Institute but also to other stakeholders at large to understand various fiscal and non-fiscal policies and initiatives undertaken by different State Governments.

I complement CA. Kemisha Soni, Chairperson, CA. Pramod Jain, Vice-Chairman, Women Members Empowerment Committee and all the Committee members for their valuable inputs in bringing out this publication.

I am sure that this publication would help to provide special insights into various initiatives and schemes and meet the objective of its release.

Preface

Women constitute approx. half of the country's population and in order to make India a powerful country, women need to be empowered. The empowerment has been felt as a tool to bring about changes in their socio-economic condition. It has been recognised worldwide that no society can progress till women, a major constituent of society, lags behind.

The World Bank believes “putting resources into poor women’s hands while promoting gender equality in the household and in society results in large development payoffs”. To promote women empowerment, Government of India has taken various initiatives by introducing different schemes and policies to improve the social status of the female population of the country. Developing nations need women’s empowerment, especially for under privileged gender because half measures of equality can’t guarantee complete progress.

To work towards women empowerment, ICAI through its Women Members Empowerment Committee, has come out with this publication on “Beneficial State Policies for Women welfare”. This publication is an endeavour by the Committee to have a one stop reference material where all the benefits provided by the various State Governments to women and girl child have been compiled for the benefit of the stakeholders at large.

Our sincere thanks to CA Nihar N Jambusaria, President ICAI and CA (Dr.) Debashis Mitra, Vice-President ICAI for their encouragement and support in bringing out this publication.

We wish to place on record our sincere thanks to the Convenor of the Group CA. Priti Savla for initiating this publication and other group members who have contributed for bringing out this publication with valuable inputs.

We commend the efforts made by CA Shanu Goel- Secretary to the Committee, Ms Ruchi Gupta and CA Jaya Kumari for their valuable contribution in developing this publication.

We hope this publication would enhance the awareness of our women members towards various benefits that are available for female gender and would be immensely useful for stakeholders at large.

Introduction

The 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development provided us with 17 development goals, but also SDG 5, which is about “Achieving gender equality and empowering all women and girls”, in all circumstances. This has put women empowerment at the focus of international community. India is a dynamic economy with an aim to be a USD 5 trillion economy by 2024. Every country of the world is keeping an eye on India as one of the fastest growing economies and largest democracy in the world. The target of USD 5 trillion economy cannot be imagined without the active support and contribution by Women which are 48.04% of its total population.

Women have enormous power and can bring about a substantial change in the society and the country. The fact that they constitute half of the country's population necessitates that they should be adequately empowered for the socio economic and political progress of our country. The need of empowerment has been felt as an instrument to bring about changes in their socio-economic condition. It has been very well recognised that no society can progress till women who constitute a major constituent of society, lag behind.

It is undeniable that women empowerment in any economy has a crucial direct impact on the economic growth and on the National development. The empowerment of the women population is all about attitudinal, structural and cultural processes. The process also includes programs and schemes whereby the women & Girls are encouraged to up skill and brush up their abilities in order to gain employability and authority.

Towards the same, Govt. at all levels- National, State and Local have implemented various schemes and beneficial policies for female gender. These schemes aim at promoting social and economic empowerment of women through cross-cutting policies and programmes, mainstreaming gender concerns, creating awareness about their rights and facilitating institutional and legislative support for enabling them realize their human rights and develop to their full potential.

WMEC has attempted to compile various policies implemented by all the State Govt. of India available through secondary research so that members may have one stop reference material for getting overview of women and girl oriented beneficial policies of our country. Our contributors and reviewers have also made initial attempts to try and procure this data to convert them into easily available information to all to get benefits of all policies and incentives. As an initial step, WMEC has attempted to compile the various State policies under the Women and Child Development Department of the respective states. There are various other initiatives taken by State Governments under different Committees/Departments etc which are not compiled in this publication. To make the publication more and more useful as well as updated, to the extent possible, we will attempt to revise it regularly, with the best support of the various Government departments and available sources.

Beneficial State Policies for Women Welfare

Due care has been taken while compiling the same but Readers discretion is expected while going through the same and the respective website link is also mentioned for more detailed information.
